The Ten Commandments

O'BRIEN
Activity by Peter Heaney

(Read pp 15-17)

Megan is on her way to Dublin and when she reads her mum's list of 'do's and don'ts' (mostly don'ts), she crushes the note and puts it in the ashtray. Her mum intended the list to be a guide to keep her safe; however it is so negative that Megan simply ignores it.

Do you think that you could create a simpler advice sheet for Megan that doesn't have any 'DON'Ts' at all? Decide what type of information should be on the sheet (e.g. contact phone numbers...). Think about the type of situations Megan may find herself in...

You can use the box below to create your sheet. Remember... really important information should be prominent and the longer the list, the less likely it is to be useful or read.

Advice to Megan (from mum)
