Left: Ladies' football enjoyed a huge upsurge in popularity in the 1990s. Here Dublin and Meath battle it out.

Above: Tipperary's team of the late 1980s and early 1990s was hugely exciting due to forwards like the brilliant Pat Fox, seen here taking on the Antrim defence in the 1989 All-Ireland hurling final.

Below: Noel Skehan, perhaps the greatest hurling goalkeeper of all time and the winner of a record seven All-Star awards in that position, is chaired off the field after Kilkenny defeated Cork in the 1983 All-Ireland hurling final.
